Eye of Africa appoints new Golf Director

Johannesburg, August 2010: The recently opened Greg Norman designed 18 hole championship golf course nestled in the Eye of Africa Golf and Residential Estate, has appointed Ruwan Combrink as Golf Director.

He steps into the role with the required passion and knowledge to ensure that the course's internationally defined golfing experience as well as club facility and service standards are professionally adhered to and maintained.

In 2006 he worked alongside the renowned PGA AAA qualified professional golfer Dave Usendorff as an assistant professional at Woodhill Country Club and thereafter at a number of South Africa's well established golf estates including Elements Private Golf Reserve, Fancourt and Ebotse Golf and Country Estate. In addition, his two year involvement in the Ernie Els Invitational further developed his skills in tournament development and management.

Combrink completed his three year apprenticeship in 2009 and is now a full member of PGA South Africa. "Eye of Africa truly is an amazing place and I really look forward to seeing it grow into one of South Africa's most elite golf estates as well as ensuring that all our members enjoy an unforgettable experience with every game. The design and layout of the course is so unique and provides an exciting challenge for both Pro and amateur golfers" says Combrink.
